

Collect and recycle 40,000 pounds of waste from national parks in the first year of the initiative.

We're going to Rebuild your Perspective

PROBLEM

National parks generate over 70 million pounds of waste every year.

That litter harms ecosystems, wildlife, and the visitor experience.

INSIGHT

People doubt their small conservation efforts matter against environmental decay. Transforming park trash into LEGO set gives them tangible proof their small action create a permanent, positive outcome.

SOLUTION

Parks Project and LEGO turn trash into individual LEGO sets featuring the parks themselves. Sold online and in gift shops, all 63 national parks will be made into a set.

100% of net profits fund conservation, so every visit and purchase becomes a tangible act of restoration.

LAUNCHING

the campaign

On National Recycle Day (November 15th) every National Park will launch an official park clean up to activate this campaign.

The goal is to accumulate 500 pounds of trash that day.

From that day forward, the trash cans will be located in every park, and every piece of trash recycled will go towards the new LEGO sets.
